LAURENTIAN HILLS

EMERGENCY PLAN AND PROGRAMME

FOREWORD

1. This plan has been developed to outline the probable course of action that would be followed in the critical hours of an emergency. It also shall provide guidance for municipal officials and department heads who shall be expected to fulfill specific responsibilities in an emergency.
2. In an increasingly complex and technological society, emergencies of a man-made nature are on the increase and add to the natural hazards that man has always faced. Since initial response to such emergencies is usually from municipal resources, it is important that a municipality have a plan prepared for co-ordination of essential services to meet an emergency in the most efficient and effective way. This is especially so at the onset, when the health and safety of the population is at greatest risk. The plan will assist in the recovery from such emergency.
3. For this plan to be effective, it is essential that all concerned be made aware of and be kept familiar with their assigned emergency functions. This can best be accomplished by regular review of responsibilities and procedures and occasional exercises to test arrangements.
4. Under authority of the Emergency Management Act c. E.9 R.S.O. 1990 as amended and by enactment of the Corporation of the Town of Laurentian Hills By-Law No. 2-05 this plan shall govern the provision of necessary services during an emergency and the recovery therefrom and the manner in which the Town, its officers, staff and others shall respond in an emergency.

Enacted this 13th day of November, 1983.

Revised this 30th day of November, 1994.

Revised this 14th day of May, 1999.

EMERGENCY PLAN AND PROGRAMME

passed under By-Law No. 02-05

1. INTRODUCTION

Emergencies are defined as situations or the threat of impending situations abnormally affecting health, safety, property and the welfare of a community, which by their nature or magnitude require a controlled and co-ordinated response by a number of agencies, both governmental and private, under the direction of the appropriate elected officials.

These are distinct from routine operations carried out by municipal and provincial agencies, e.g. firefighting, police, health, etc.

The Emergency Management and Civil Protection Act of Ontario provides the authority and requires a council of a municipality to pass a by-law enacting an emergency plan and programme governing the provision of necessary services during an emergency and the procedures under and the manner in which officers, staff and others of the municipality shall respond to the emergency. It also provides that by-laws passed under this legislation may provide for:

- a. money associated with the formulation and implementation of the emergency plan;
- b. authorize employees of the municipality to take action before formal declaration of an emergency;
- c. specify procedures to be taken for safety or evacuation of persons in an emergency area;
- d. designate one or more members of council who may exercise powers and perform the duties of the Mayor during an emergency while the Mayor is absent or unable to act;
- e. establish committees and designate employees to be responsible for reviewing the emergency plan, training employees in their function and implementing the emergency plan during an emergency;
- f. obtaining and distributing materials, equipment and supplies during an emergency; and the supplies necessary for training and;
- g. such other matters as are considered necessary or advisable for the implementation of the emergency plan during an emergency.

Based on the foregoing, it is clear, whenever an emergency occurs, that residents in an affected area shall look to local government for immediate assistance and direction on how to respond to the emergency situation. Later, outside assistance from adjacent municipalities and senior levels of government could be brought to bear, however, local government shall continue in most cases to be responsible for determining local priorities, co-ordinating the provision of all resources and exercising overall control of the situation.

Municipalities should expect to scale up or down the level of their response depending upon the length and severity of an emergency.

However, emergency operations shall continue and municipal departments should expect to remain on emergency status until a situation is returned to normal conditions and an official declaration is made to that effect and to provide assistance during recovery as required.

When an emergency situation or a threat of one occurs, the Municipal Emergency Control Group shall assemble at the Emergency Control Centre -

Other representatives from public or private agencies may be invited to attend meetings of the MECG to provide specialist knowledge or advice. For instance, depending upon the circumstances, a MECG may require advice from privately owned utilities, chemical manufacturers, shipping companies or public agencies having specific roles to play in emergencies, e.g. health, environment, labour, etc.

3.2 Responsibilities

Municipal Emergency Control Group. Some or all of the following actions/decisions may have to be considered and dealt with by the MECG:

- > function of the MECG (present) is assisting the Mayor in making and placing in effect any decisions and orders that are made to control the emergency;
- > advising the Mayor on declaring or terminating an “emergency” to exist;
- > designating the town or any part as an “emergency area”;
- > “authorizing expenditures” of funds for implementing the emergency plan;
- > “evacuating” those buildings or sections within an emergency area which are themselves considered to be dangerous or in which the occupants are considered to be in danger for some other source;
- > “dispersing people” not directly connected with the operations who by their presence are considered to be in danger or whose presence hinders in any way the efficient functioning of emergency operations;
- > “discontinuing utilities” or services provided by public or private concerns without reference to any consumers in the town, when continuation of such utilities or services constitute a hazard to public safety within an emergency area;
- > “arranging for accommodation and welfare”, on a temporary basis, of any residents who are in need of assistance due to displacement as a result of the emergency;
- > “calling in and employment of any municipal personnel and equipment” or others which is required in the emergency;
- > “arranging assistance” from senior levels of government and of other personnel and equipment of volunteers or other agencies not under municipal control as may be required by the emergency;
- > “establishing an information centre” for issuance of accurate releases to the news media and for issuance of authoritative instructions to the general public; and
- > “establishing a reporting and inquiry centre” to handle individual requests for information concerning any aspect of the emergency.

4. MUNICIPAL EMERGENCY CONTROL GROUP OPERATIONS

4.1 Implementation and Procedures

Emergencies could arise with or without warning; this plan takes this into account and is intended to deal with the worst case, a situation that develops without warning.

An emergency shall usually be reported or discovered by either the police or fire services who would, in any event, be among the first to be called to the scene of a potential emergency.

The senior responder, normally a police or fire officer, should personally assume control of the situation or arrange for an on-site co-ordinator to take charge immediately and then, depending upon the situation, he may make a decision to alert and assemble the MECCG. The procedure for alerting and assembling the MECCG is outlined in detail in Appendix 1.

4.2 Operations

Upon assembly the Mayor, based upon the advice of the members of the MECCG, may declare an emergency.

The role of the MECCG probably can best be accomplished by a round-table assessment of events as they occur or by agreeing to a course of action to overcome specific problem areas or situations.

Normally, an agreed course of action shall be implemented by municipal departments functioning primarily within their own spheres. However, from time to time, it may become necessary to adopt and implement a joint plan of action which could involve two or more departments operating in unison. In this latter situation, it would be necessary to determine which department shall have the greater commitment and to appoint an on-site co-ordinator accordingly. Therefore, until emergency operations conclude, other departments should act in support of whichever department is exercising on-site co-ordination of operations. It may also be necessary for the MECCG to function in concert with neighbouring municipalities or request assistance from them or the County.

4.3 Communications and Co-ordination

An important function of every department is to provide timely information for the benefit of the MECCG decision-making process. This necessitates reliable systems of communication between the emergency site and the MECCG operations centre for every department involved. Radios are least susceptible to damage or interruption in times of emergency. However, if telephones are to provide this vital medium of communication, the operations centre must have a reasonable multiplicity of lines and instruments. Additionally, the operations centre must be sufficiently large to accommodate both information gathering and display activities and provide room for the MECCG to deliberate and function.

Once decisions have been taken by the MECG, it is essential they be quickly and accurately disseminated to every response agency and, where necessary, to the public. This vital function shall normally fall to the Chief Administrative Officer who shall act as Operations Officer and be responsible for co-ordinating the activities of the operations centre and for ensuring good communication between all agencies involved in the emergency response.
